Last month, I went to Hungry Tummy restaurant in Al Seeb, a suburb of Muscat. It was on a Friday night. It was my sister Hanan's birthday. So, all family members decided to celebrate at this newly-opened restaurant.

We reached the restaurant around 8:00 pm. My father had booked a table for us a day before. Hungry Tummy serves Chinese cuisine. We ordered soup, fried rice, noodles, fried chicken, spring rolls, and a seafood platter.

The food was delicious and we were enjoying our meal, when my brothers decided that we should use chopsticks rather than forks to eat our food. We had never used chopsticks before, so we really struggled. I dropped my chopstick into the soup bowl. The soup spilled on Hanan's new clothes! Hanan was quite upset. People in the restaurant were looking at us. It was so embarrassing. I was happy to leave the restaurant, when the dinner was over.
